

SONG: So You and I

The end, at last. Determinism dashed.
Logic be damned. And thank God for fate.

TOM (sung)

As figures in a clock spin,
As the moon around the earth dances,
As Earth around the Sun, in
Elegant ballet, advances,
And stars wheel about the sky,
So you and I.

So you and I, are joined at last
By fortune's tender plan.
From peril and pretending,
Flows a most unlikely ending:
We're back where we began.

SOPHIA

The past is gone - a faded page,
Read once and thrown away.
And who can guess tomorrow?
Time is only ours to borrow,
And spend as best we may.

BOTH

Til now, I was lost,
Tossed on a sea of tears and sighs;
But now, stars uncrossed,
I see forever in your eyes.

So you and I are landed safe
On history's other shore,
Where fear and farce are ended
And broken hearts are always mended,
And broken never more.

ALL

(from nowhere and everywhere, softly at first, then building)

Till now, all was dark,
Lost in a night of tears and sighs.
Now, I see a spark: the sun begins to rise...
The world appears, resolved and whole -
Appears, but who can say.
Still, we can shape this hour;
Such a task is in our power.
So we shall face today.

SOPHIA

As figures in a clock spin,

As the moon around the TOM earth dances.

You and I. ALL